Mark Nijhof

My name is Mark Nijhof and I am always looking for interesting work or interesting people to work with.

I am an experienced Microsoft .Net C# developer with good knowledge about Object Oriented (OO) design. I put great effort in my code to ensure that it is always clean and readable. I am creative and am always thinking of innovative solutions. I consider myself a Software Craftsman and am a strong believer of continuous improvement and teaching.

Our Vision

The vision of Cre8ive Thought is to help make the software industry more professional and focused on quality. We will do this by promoting and teaching the principles of Software Craftsmanship to developers and managers. We will work together to introduce change within the whole software development process.

Services

Writing quality software is hard. Many software projects have a fast initial pace which slows down as time passes. Using solid craftsmanship principles and practices a fast and steady pace is ensured.

Development

Whether you need extra manpower to help deliver your software or a team lead to take responsibility for the entire project, I will use my knowledge and experience to make sure the result is well crafted software.

Coaching

Need help improving your teams software development practices and understanding, or want an architectural review of your code? I am available for coaching either through design sessions or working alongside the team using pair programming.

Introductions

Sometimes you just want a quick introduction into a new technology, technique or methodology. I can provide a quick introduction and then go into the details on how this may be applied in your code. Nothing helps understanding something new better than seeing it applied to your own problem domain.
